

Atenas, la blancura de la diosa

Miguel Ángel ELVIRA BARBA
Catedrático de Arte Clásico, UCM

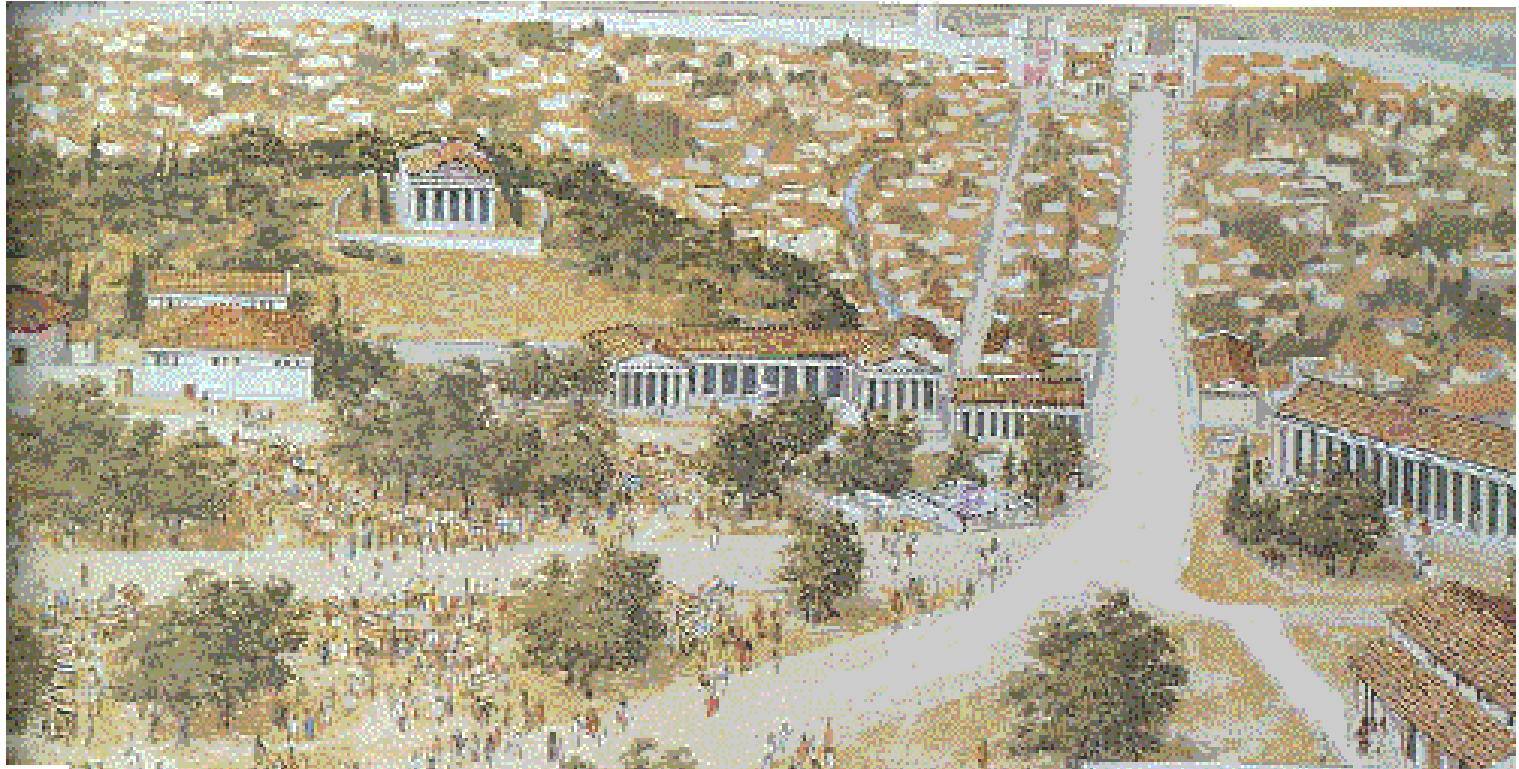

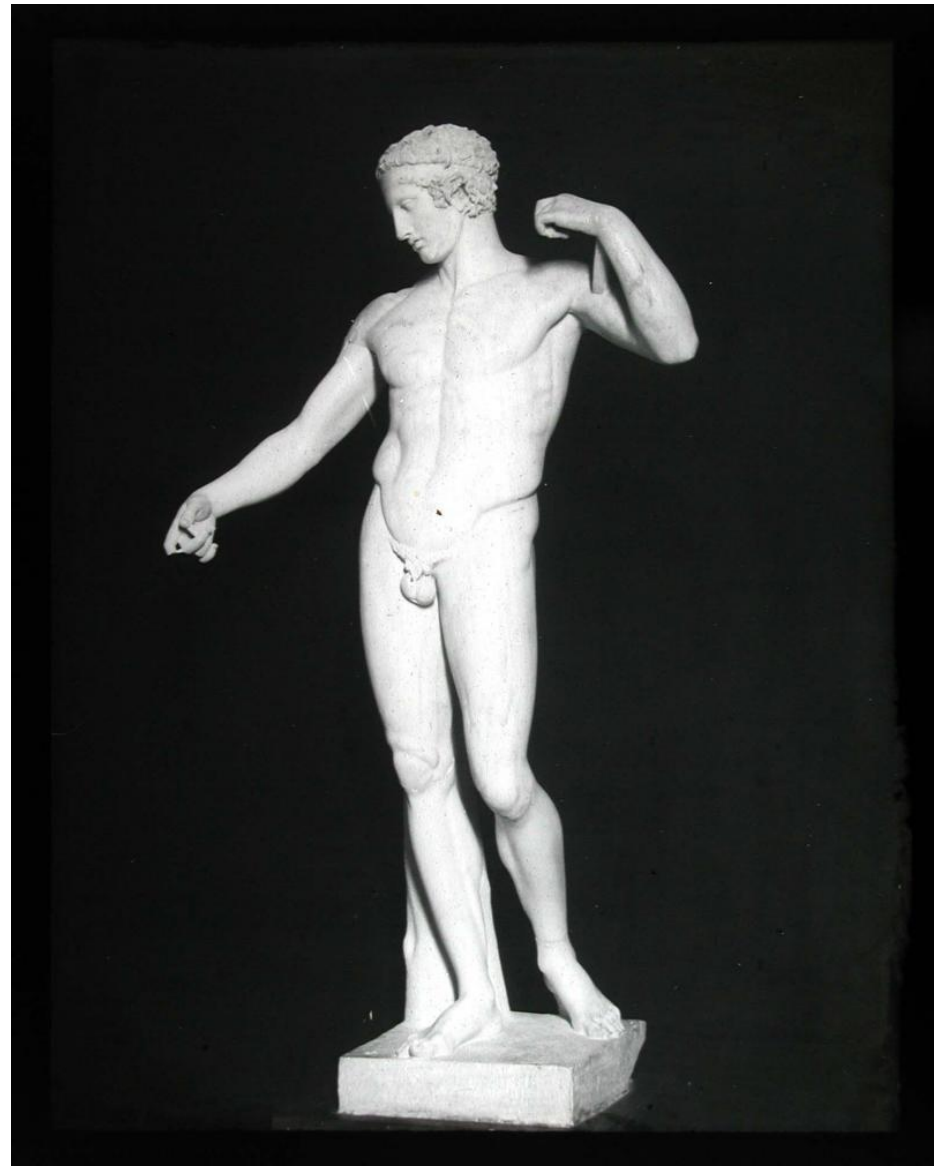

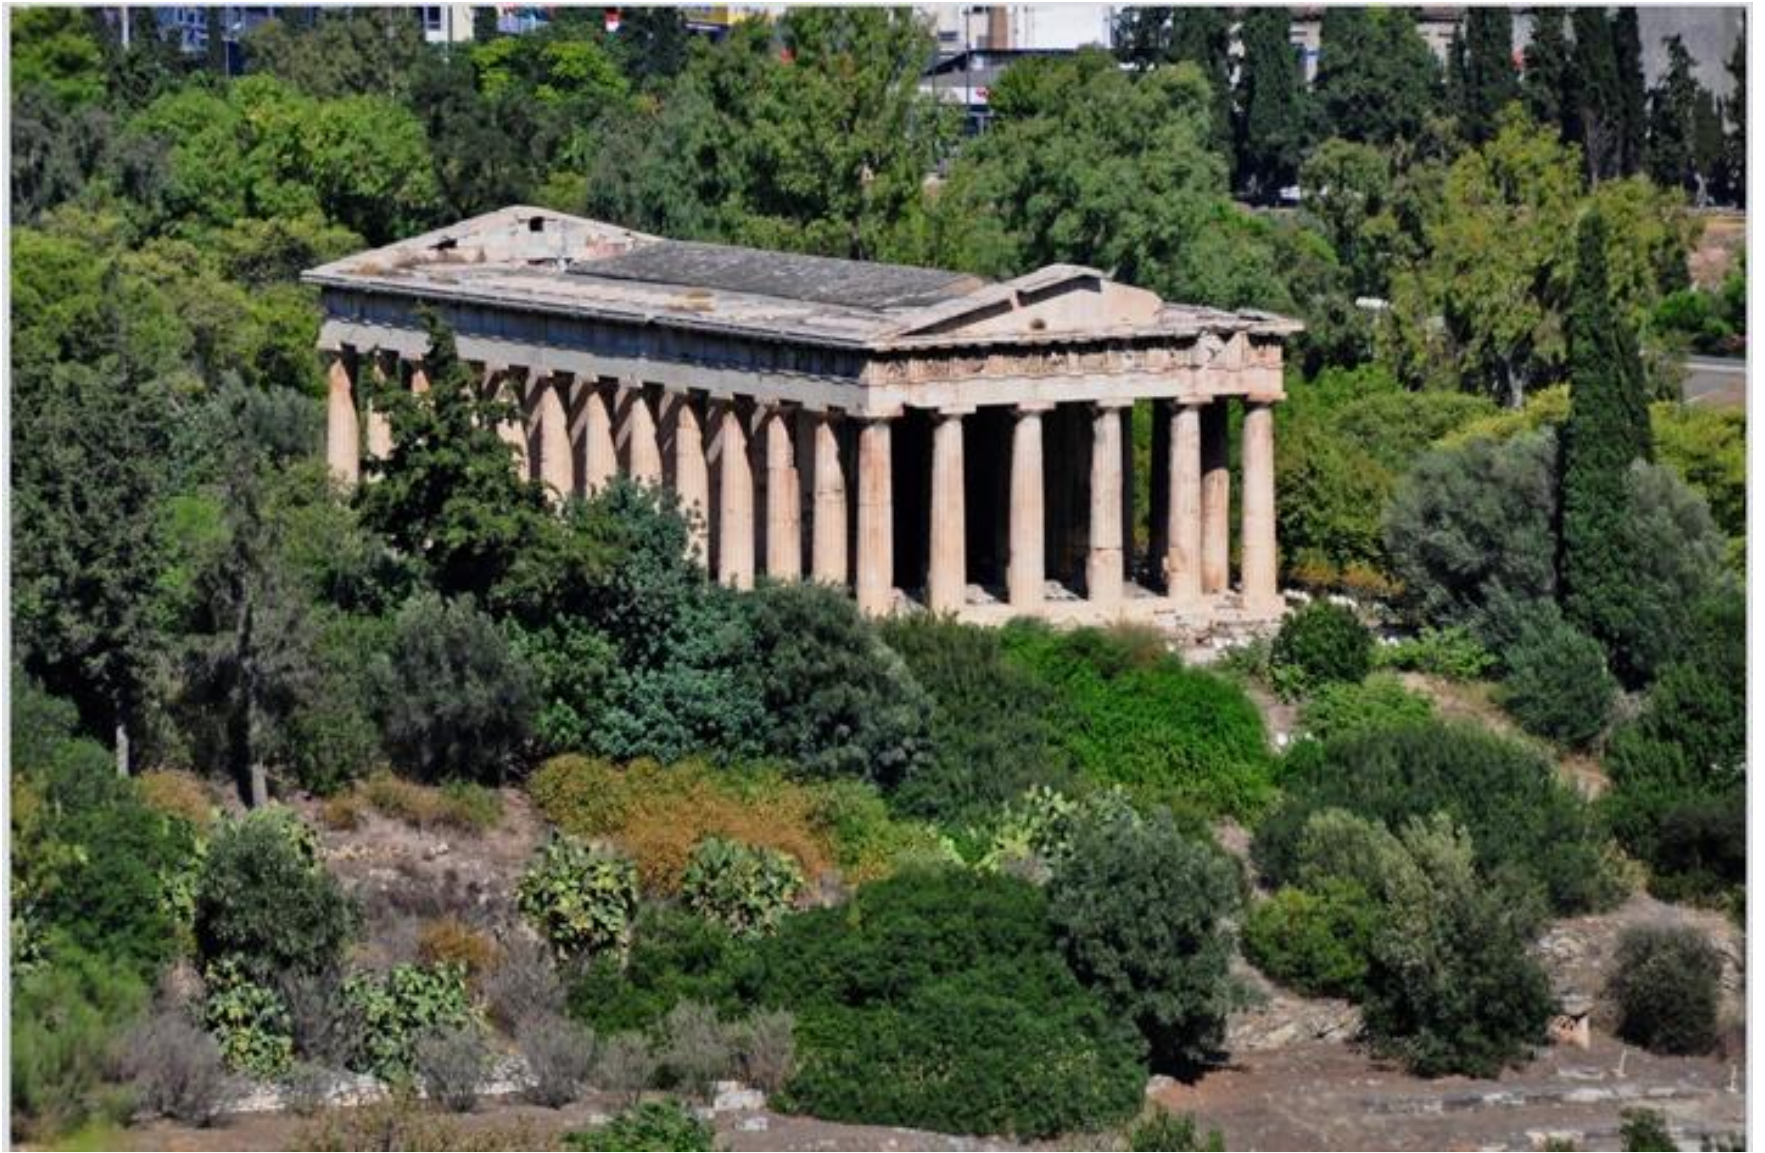

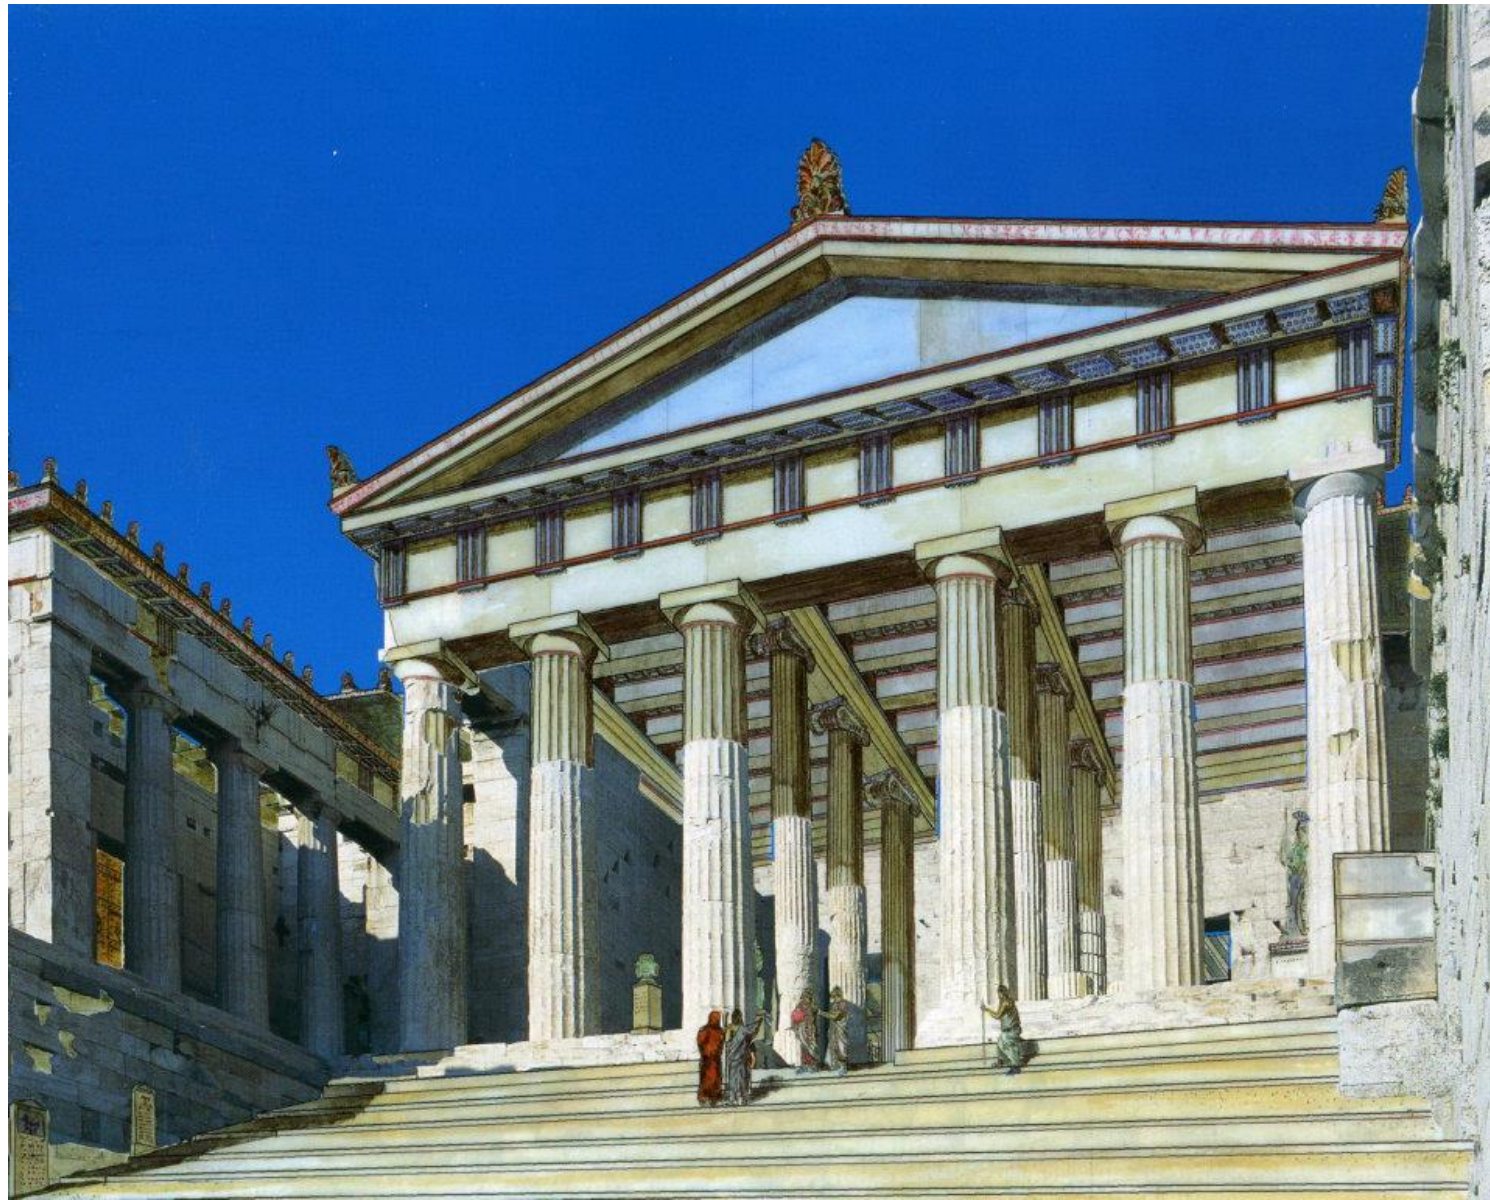

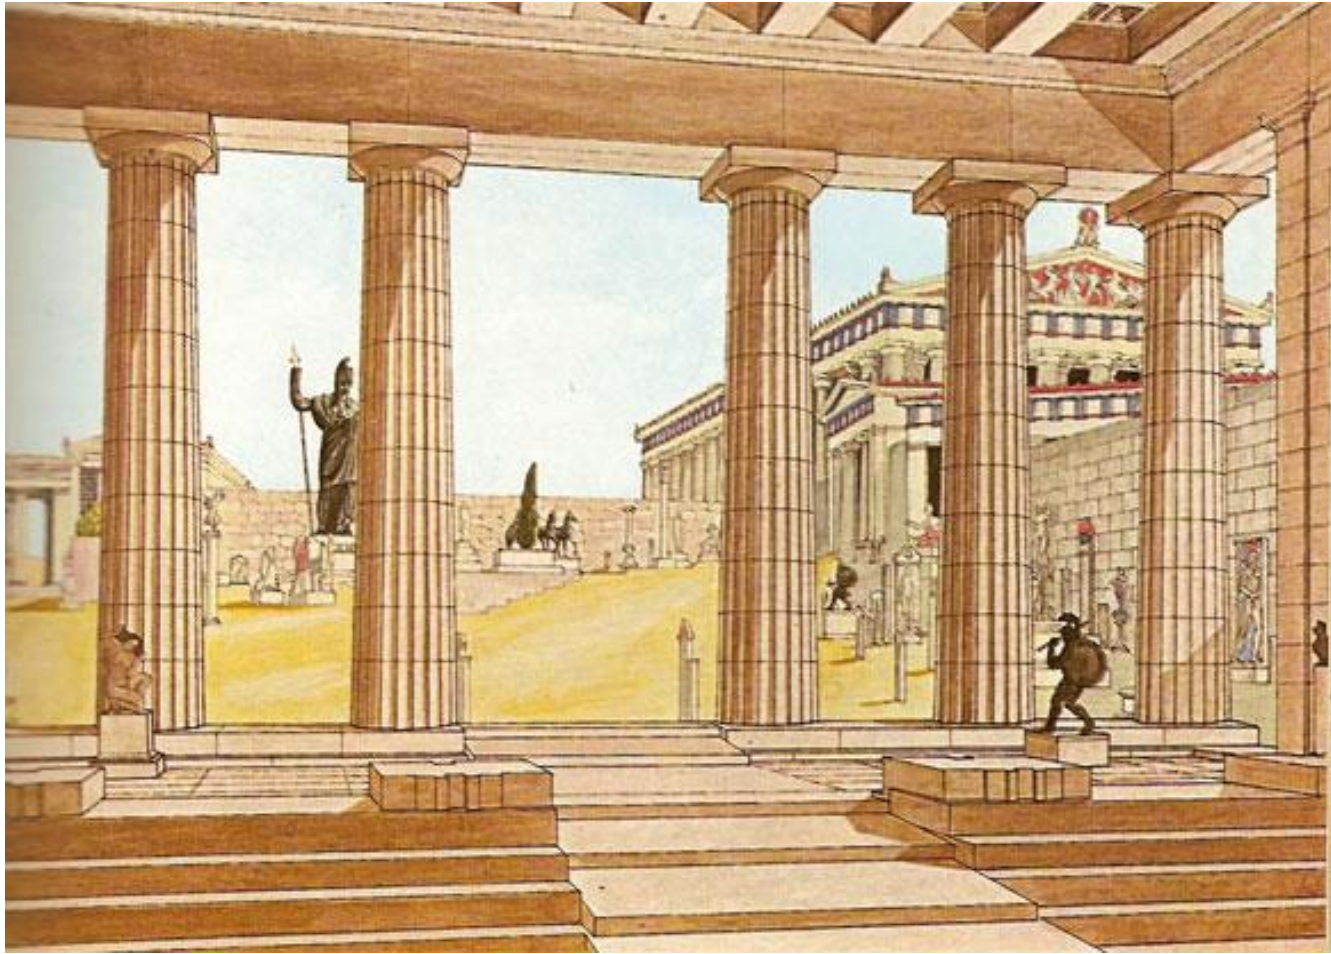

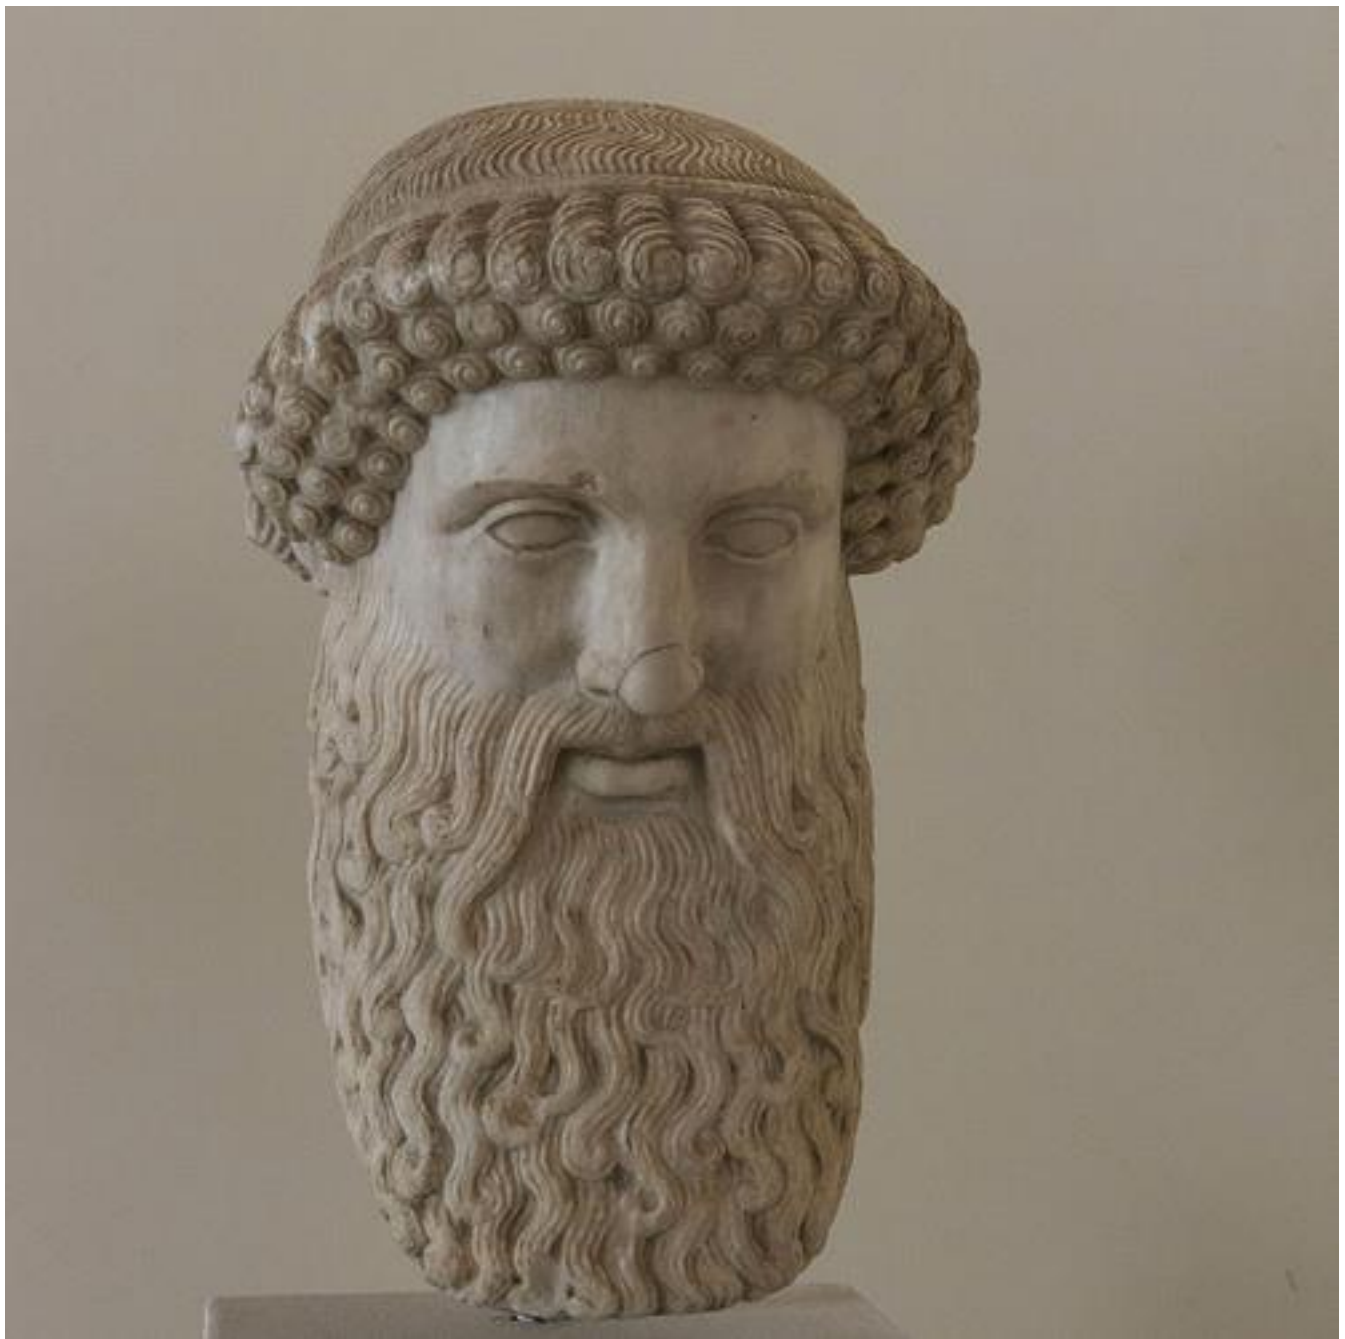

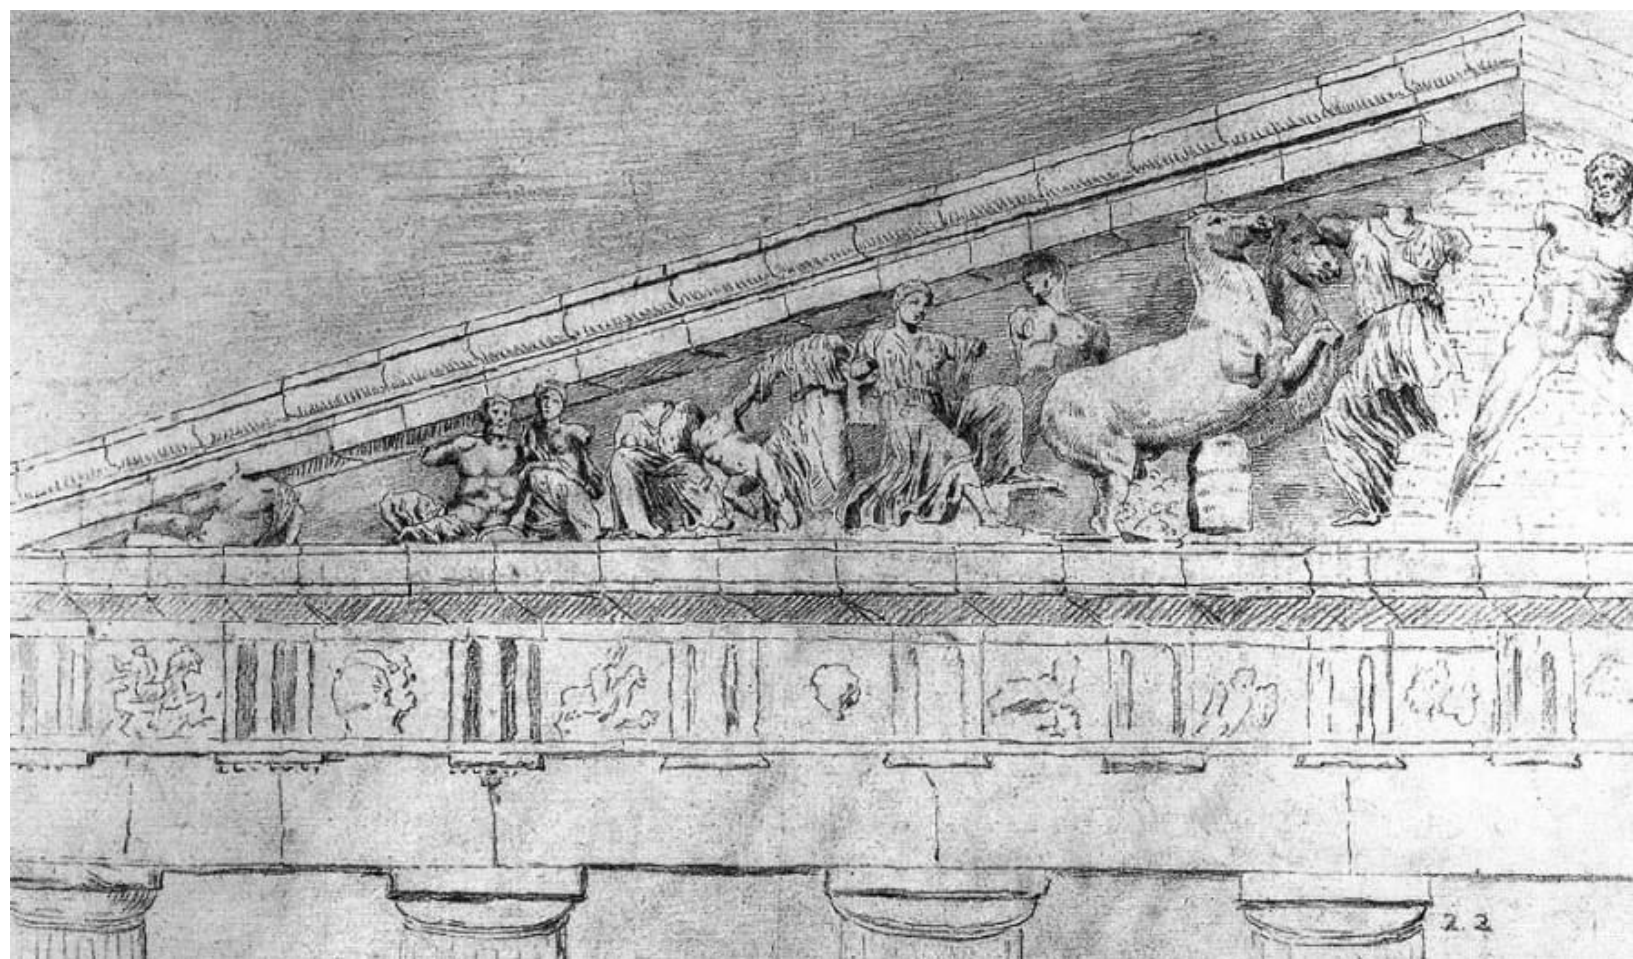

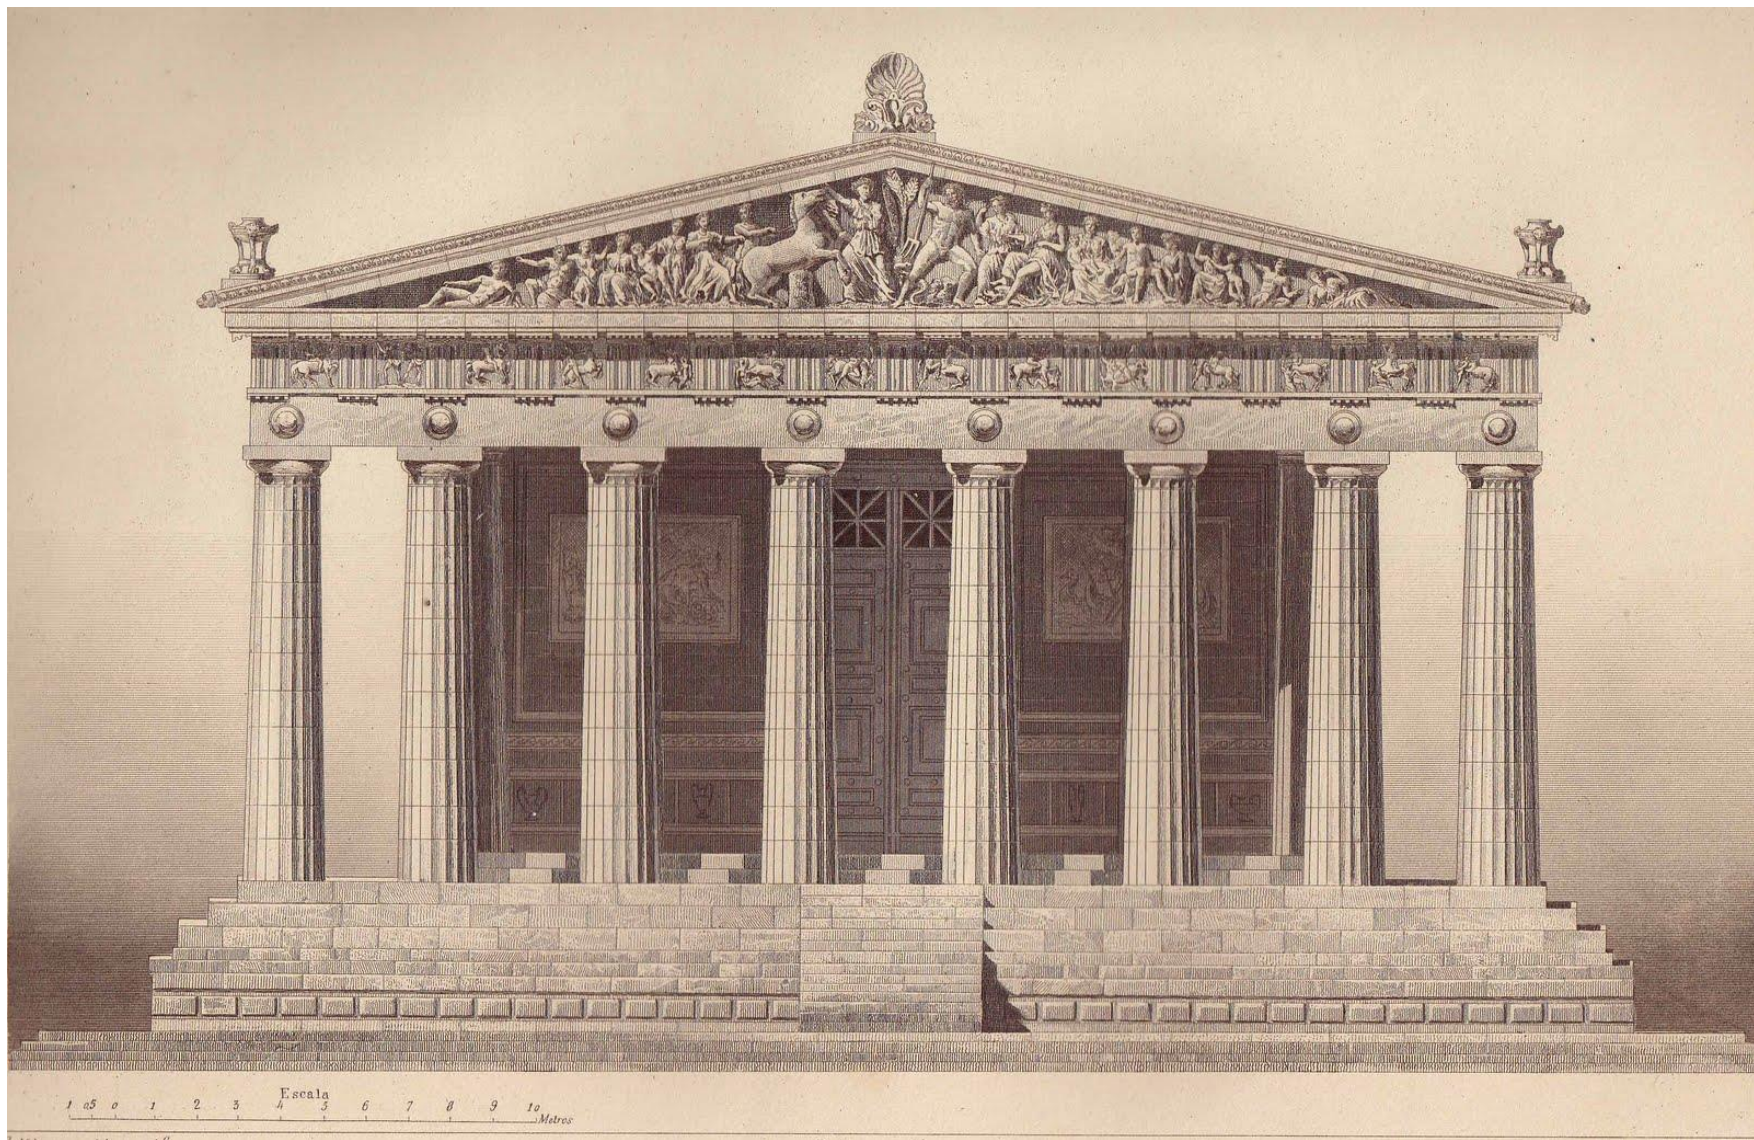

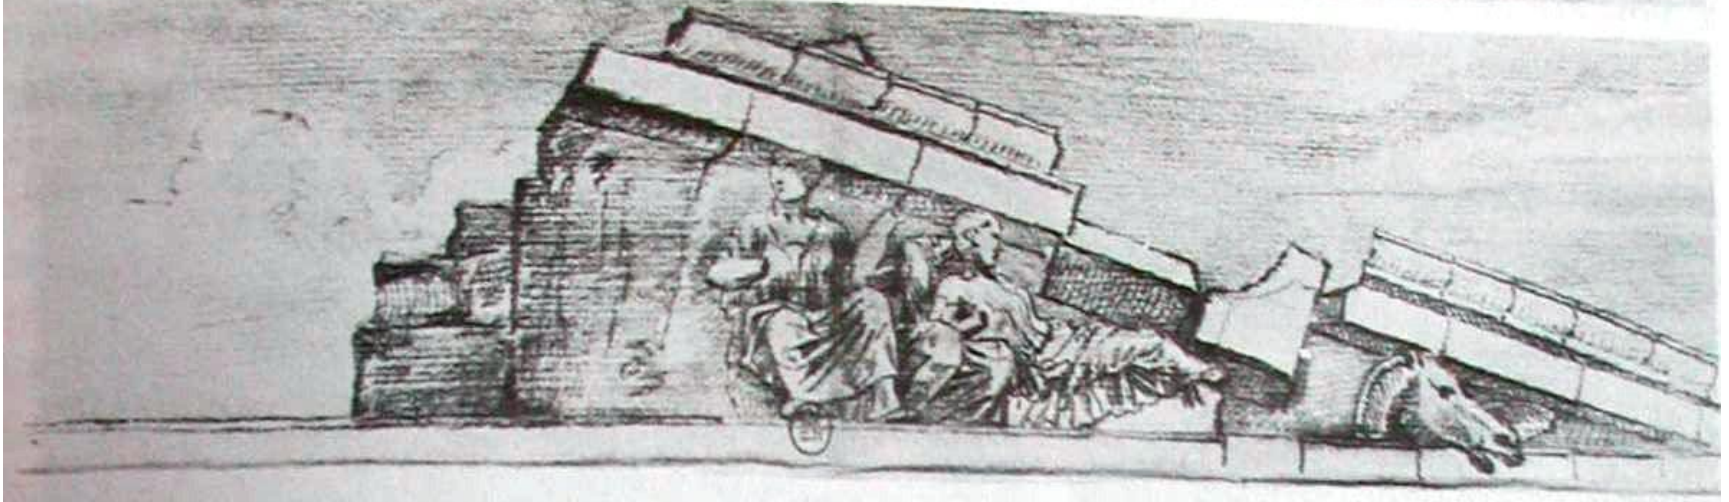

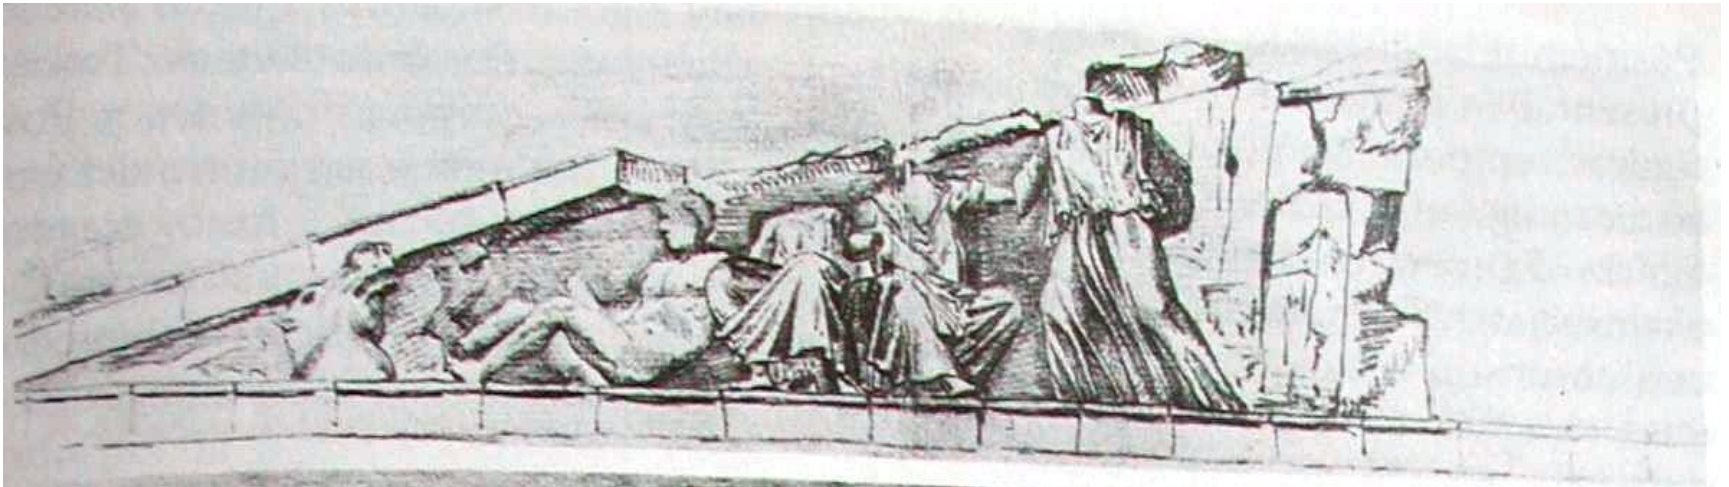

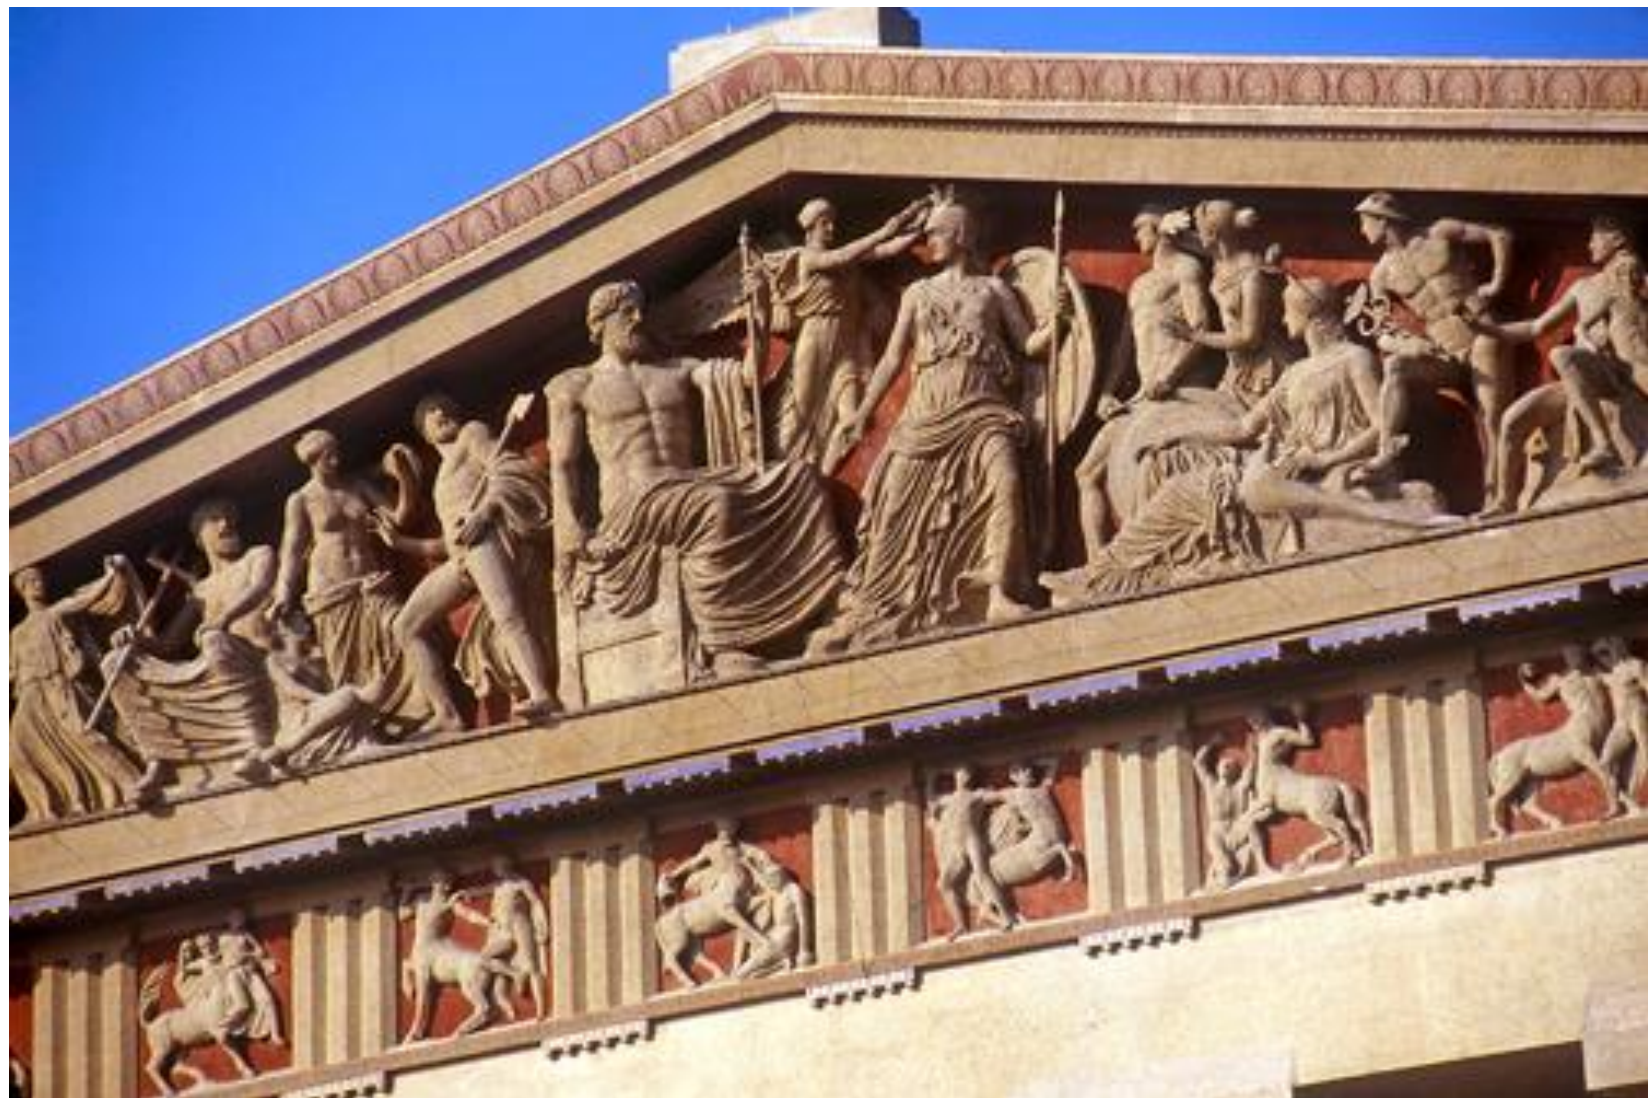

© Acropolis Museum. Photo Nikos Daniilidis

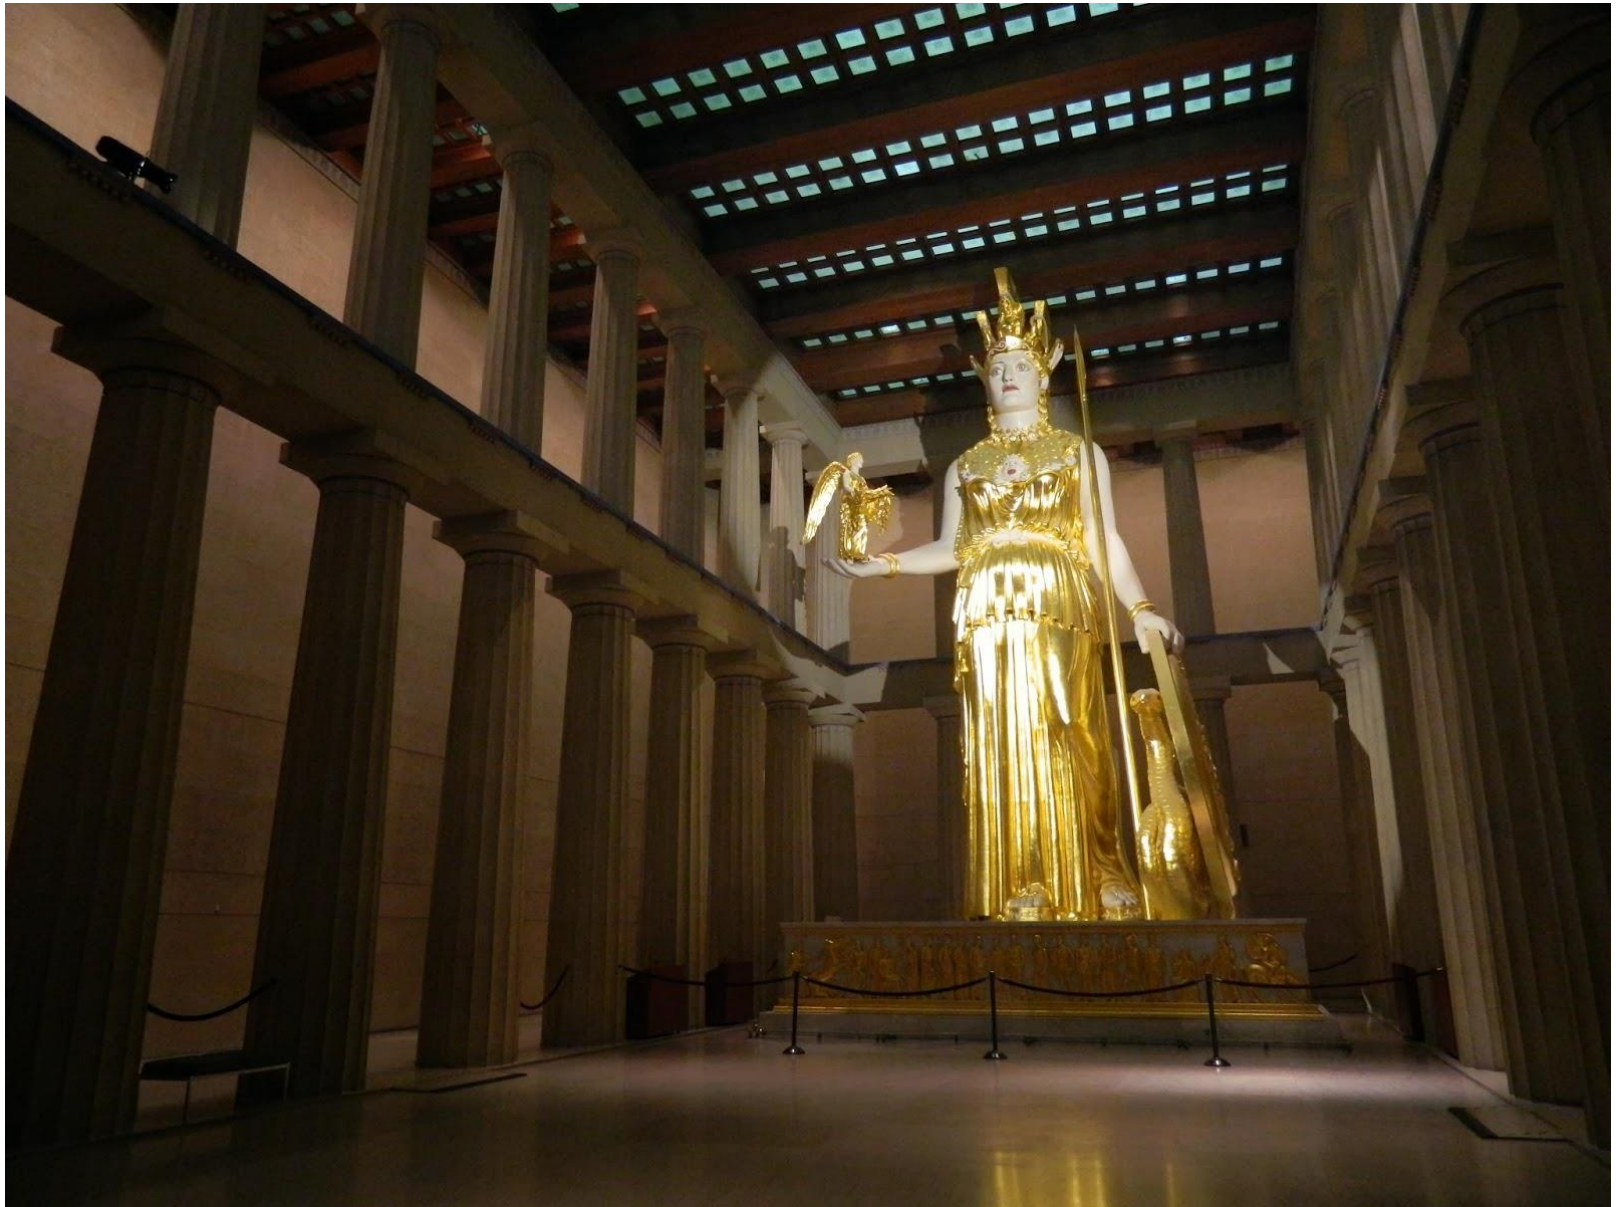

Kent Pediment, G. This is the head of a horse from the chariot of the moon-goddess Artemis, which balanced the group of Athena and her horses in the opposite angle of the pediment. The horse is weary from his night-long labour: the eyes bulge, the mouth flares and the mouth gapes open as the beast gasps for breath.

muchas gracias

